

Foresters dividend history

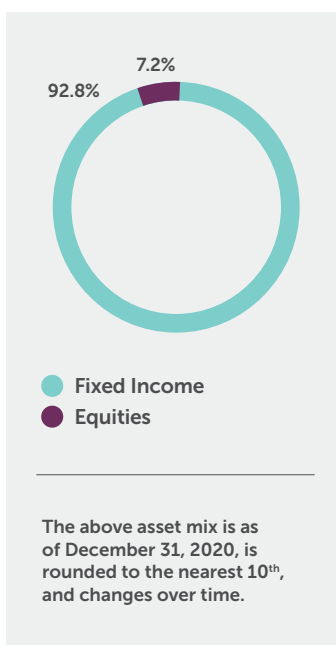

Participating whole life insurance offers the added value of potential dividend growth

Foresters Financial™ has several types of insurance products to help meet both your current and future needs. Some of our life insurance products are called “participating” as they allow you to participate in Foresters success through dividends, when we declare them.¹

Dividends can be used to purchase additional coverage, reduce premiums, deposited with Foresters to accumulate with interest or even paid in cash.

The table below shows the historical performance of Foresters dividend interest rates, relative to other popular indicators.²

The accompanying chart shows the mix of assets in the portfolio that supports applicable dividend paying participating products. Investments are carefully selected with security and long-term growth in mind.

How dividends are calculated

The Foresters Dividend Interest Rate is the earned rate of the portfolio that supports applicable Foresters participating life products. The rate may reflect smoothing techniques to dampen volatility in the interest rate. The assumed rate used on the sales illustration provided by your insurance representative will be different as it will be specific to that product, not the entire participating product portfolio.

On an annual basis, Foresters reviews the performance of our participating products. We look at our claims experience, how we managed our expenses, and the performance of the investment portfolio that supports the participating products. These variables are part of a much larger calculation which Foresters uses to ultimately calculate the annual certificate dividend. Foresters has consistently paid dividends for over 60 years.

The flexibility to meet your unique needs

Foresters participating whole life insurance is an attractive option for families looking to help protect their financial security. We offer the flexibility to choose from four dividend options for declared dividends:

Paid-up additional insurance

Dividends are used to buy additional permanent life insurance. No further premiums are needed to keep this paid-up additional insurance in effect while the certificate is in force. Paid-up additional insurance is also eligible to earn dividends and has a cash value.

Dividends on Deposit

Dividends remain on deposit within the certificate and earn interest. Dividends and any accumulated interest can be withdrawn at any time. Dividend interest is taxable.

Cash Payment

Dividends are paid directly to the certificate owner.

Premium Reduction

Dividends are credited towards the premium. If the dividend is greater than the premiums due in a given year, the remainder of the dividend will be applied to a secondary dividend option.
